Fable:	a short story that usually includes anthropomorphic animals and teaches a moral lesson
Parable:	a short story that has a moral lesson, but usually does not include anthropomorphic animals
Myth:	a story about gods, goddesses, and heroes that explains natural events or human behavior
Legend:	an old story, passed down as history, but is mostly fiction

Story One: _____ On final exam day a professor told her class, "It's been a pleasure teaching you. I know you have all worked very hard and many of you are worried about your grade point average dropping. Therefore, anyone who would like to get out of this test will receive a 'T' for the course." Immediately, all but two students leapt up, thanked the professor, and rushed from the room. She then closed the door behind them, turned to the two remaining students, and said "I'm glad to see you believe in yourselves. You both have A's."

Story Two: _____ Many years ago an ordinary man named Robin lived in Sherwood Forest. He did not like the way the rich treated the poor Saxon people who worked hard every day. They lived in small huts while the Normans wasted money on huge castles and feasts. When Robin was declared an outlaw by the nasty Prince John, he lost everything he owned and was banished to the forest. The Saxon people took pity on him and gave him food and shelter. In return, Robin swore to help them. He and his band of outlaws began to steal from the rich and distribute what they took among the poor.

Story Three: _____ Zeus fell in love Metis, but she changed her form many times to avoid him. Finally, though, she agreed to marry him and bear his child. A secret told Zeus that this child would be a girl and cause no problems, but her next child, a boy, would overthrow him. Wanting to take no chances, Zeus swallowed Metis. Later, he got a terrible headache and howled so loud that the other gods came to see what was wrong. To help, they decided to split open Zeus's skull and when they did, out sprang Athena. Considering the circumstances of her birth, Athena became the goddess of intellect and wisdom.

Story Four: _____ One summer day a thirsty Lion and a Bear came up to a well at the same time. They began to argue over who should drink first and soon were locked in a fight till the death. When they stopped suddenly to catch their breath, they saw some Vultures waiting in the distance to feast on whoever lost the fight. They stopped their battle at once, saying, "It is better for us to make friends, than to become the food of Vultures."

Ancient greece and rome study guide answer key. Ancient greece test review.

Find the time that works for you, and make yourself sit down to study and deal with whatever homework you have at that moment every day or as many days as possible. Everyone is there. Your brain and memory work better when you are rested, so you can retain more information and do better on your test. Make sure it is comfortable and organized. Be sure to take breaks while you study. Turn off your devices. Taking five minutes rest every 30 to 60 minutes can help you retain information. Create the right environment. Finally, create a good study environment. If you have a lot of reading to do, divide it into chapters or pages, and read one section each day. Get some sleep. While it may be tempting to stay up all night studying before a big exam, you are better off sleeping. You wait until the last minute to study, and you do it all in one sitting. Not only is it exhausting, but you probably don't even remember half of what you study. Try meditating. Walk around, listen to music, read a book, or do some stretching. Read about Greek history and politics from the Archaic period to the Hellenistic period. Whether you are taking the biggest exam of your life or you know that your teacher or professor is going to give a pop quiz soon, efficient studying is a great way to be prepared. Create a routine. One of the best things you can do for yourself, if you can, is to pay attention when the TV is on or when you constantly receive messages from friends. If you do well with silent mode, use a fan to make background noise or turn on a radio. Do whatever it takes to get your mind in the right mood for study time. Maybe after dinner or just when I get home from school. That is why it may be better to separate it out and do a little each day. If you have had a full night's sleep, consider etnemeverb etnemeverb the day to help himself to sleep. Clear your mind before you sit down to study, make sure that you have a clear mind and that you are not focused on anything else. No matter what your age, there is always room for improvement when it comes to studying. If you have a big project in a few weeks, break it down into stages, and take one of the stages every other day until everything is complete. You may find it more effective to study music that does not have lyrics. A useful way to do this is to find a way to incorporate it into your daily routine at the same time, every day. MORE FROM QUESTIONSANSWERED.NET The Greeks invented democracy, started the Olympic Games, built the foundation of Western arts and culture, and loved a good party. You also want to have plenty of water and some healthy snacks on hand if you are studying for a while. while.
