Driving test definition A driving test also known as a driving exam, or a drivers test is a procedure designed to evaluate a persons ability to operate a motor vehicle such as a passenger car, motorcycle, or commercial vehicle. In the United States, passing a driving test is usually one of the requirements for obtaining a driver license. The administration of driving tests and the issuance of driver licenses are typically the responsibility of the state government's DMV. The written test covers the information found in the official Driver License Manual, including road rules, traffic laws and signs, fines, limits, and safe driving practices. What to Practice for the Driving Test. Things to remember Know your car. The car youre using for your test should be familiar to you, and not one that youre sitting in for the first time. Youll want to know where the controls are for everything from the lights to the windshield wipers, so you arent frantically searching if it starts raining. The way each cars brake and gas pedals react can be different, so knowing how sensitive these are can help you avoid braking or accelerating too aggressively or too slowly. Get plenty of practice. Like anything else, learning how to be a good driver takes lots of time behind the wheel practicing. There are things youll learn while driving that you just cant get from reading, so its important to log plenty of time at the wheel. Prepare and adapt to anything. Whether its weather conditions, an ambulance coming down the road or any other situation that could happen, you should be mentally prepared to adapt and adjust accordingly. The only true way to do this is get in those hours of practice driving, and trying to do so in a variety of weather conditions. Only getting out to drive on beautiful, sunny days will only work against you if your test lands on a rainy, overcast day. Pay attention to driving. It sounds obvious enough, but its easy to get distracted by what the evaluator is doing.

Trying to sneak a peek at what theyre writing down or their facial expressions is not a good idea, if youre hoping to walk out of there a licensed driver. Leave everything else at the door, and give your full attention to the task at hand. Whether its schoolwork or other things happening in your life, it needs to be temporarily put to the back of your mind. Safe driving tips Drive the speed limit and maintain a constant speed. Obey all road signs that you see. Steer smoothly. Hold onto the steering wheel with both hands at all times. Follow at a safe distance use the 3 second rule. Don't stop too closely to the vehicle in front of you when you need to come to a stop. As a general rule, you should be able to see the tires of the car in front of you. Do not cross solid lines as this will result in an instant and automatic fail. Always look over your shoulder before changing lanes and be sure to use your blinker. Only change lanes when you are absolutely certain that it is safe. If your test administrator asks you to change lanes, make sure that it is safe first. Watch for school busses. If the bus is pulled over to the side of the road and their lights are flashing, do not pass. Use your turn signals. It helps let other drivers know what you are planning on doing. Make sure that you turn your turn signal on plenty of time before you are actually going to turn.
