One solution that has RARELY been seen to work is to completely pull the HDD from the external harddrive casing. Then plug the HDD into a computer via SATA cable, or into an external docking station if you have one available. Then if you cant see it in Windows you can try Ubuntu. At that point there are a couple of different companies you can send the HDD off to for data recovery, but it wont be cheap. Posted 20181015 admin.
