Prosumer 21 5.0 out of 5 stars After 12 years and how many thousands of pages, I say thank you to Canon for making such a competent printer. Scanning function was terrific too, and so was color photo printing. I'm surprised at so many negative reviews on Amazon, but that's how quality control works. For instance, I'll never ever buy Brother printers because of personal bad experience with one, but plenty of people have had great experience with them. I replaced this one with another Canon printer. Well see how long that one lasts. Well, this Cannon PIXMA MP600 is the answer. The PIXMA MP600 is a jewel of a printer, manufactured with high quality, ease of use, and versatility in mind. I particularly enjoy the onetouch scanning, and the Easy Scroll Wheel, in tandem with the onboard LCD screen which makes selecting, adjusting, and managing your prints a breeze from the printer or from your computer. Another plus is the fact that Cannon separates the ink colors into five different ink pots.

This means you save a great deal of money by replacing only the ink pot that contains the color of ink that you need, when it is needed, instead of replacing one big, EXPENSIVE cartridge. Each pot costs around 10-12 bucks, as opposed to the all-in-one cartridge costing upwards of 80 dollars. I also noticed that since these ink pots are separated, the ink lasts a lot longer partly because each pot contains so much more ink than the all-in-one cartridges. But on top of the savings and convenience, the ease of use is amazing. No complicated, confusing adjustments to make unless you WANT to make them, then those controls are available to you you literally press a button and you scan, copy, and print documents, as well as print photos. You can use the provided photo suite software, or you can make adjustments on the LCD screen and print directly from your Phone, Digital cam or even from your digital cameras memory card with the onboard memory reader. To sum up, I give the Canon PIXMA MP600 an 11 out of 10 for versatility, ease of use, quality manufacturing, and the high quality of the end product the pictures that this printer creates are clear, crisp, and professional quality. The printouts are document quality, and the copies and scans are literally photo quality. Buy this printer and you will not regret the decision!! NOT FOR A SECOND!!! The photo quality is exceptional for the all in ones in this price range of about 150.00 on up. My friend spent 400.00 on his HP C7180, and side by side he admitted my photo print at the best resolution was better than his. That's double the resolution. Not to mention more printing nozzles than any other printer in its class. Even though on paper it says it's the same resolution doesn't mean it is the same quality, especially when you print a picture or something that requires any detail. Printing on the 2nd to best 4x6 glossy photo paper set to best photoprint settings the picture looks like a photo lab quality picture. No kidding.

my wife, family, and friends couldn't tell a difference. I am sure a trained eye could, but you'll have to squint or look twice. Now, as far as size goes. It is big all in one, don't let the small picture fool you. I was surprised when it arrived. Do the right thing and buy this printer. That is if print quality, price, ease of use, and overall product quality is important to you. What are you waiting for. The positive Print wise, it's great. The photos I print come out with crisp borders and clean images. For documents it is ok though it tends to be an ink hog, even in gray scale but I suppose any printer is guilty of that. The negative I bought it back in the days of XP. But now I have Vista Ultimate 64. But it's what I have and there is no USB driver for 64 based Windows OS which means in order to use this printer I have to use another device as a server. I have a wireless print server which does not work because that needs the client to have a virtual USB for 64 bit driver and Canon does not have one available. Does anyone I don't know the answer to that. Anyway. So I print through another computer in the house via the network. What I mean is I print from my Vista 64 bit computer and the print service goes through an XP machine on my home network and prints out on the Canon. I dislike how much ink refills cost the non OEM cartridges suck, they don't last very long and can be messy so I only buy the Canon cartridges any more. I can almost always find the multi color pack but the big black refill can be difficult to find. Overall it is like any Canon which is to say superior when it comes to imaging. But I'm ready to get a non USB printer hooked up to the print server so I don't need to rely on another computer being online. I get my most wanted eBook Many thanks If there is a survey it only takes 5 minutes, try any survey which works for you. Excellent image quality and sharpness. Preprint preparation time after idle period. No automatic document feeder for copying. This is a good quality machine and would be a great addition to your home if your interests lie in the direction of photography or graphic arts. Card ports are also hidden away behind a small door at the front of the machine and the PictBridge port hides under an overhang below this. There is, however, a manual feeder tray that can also take a similar load. Scanning to the PC is assisted by ScanGear software which is accessible from a desktop icon; it provides easy access to a wealth of options. The Pixma MP600 is well made, sturdy machine.
