The guy I bought it from said it was a 1986 model year, but I was under the impression that they didnt start making these until 1997. Anyway, its an early model. I guess its what they call a Phase 1. At least thats what I come up with when I search for a service manual for it. And that leads me to my first question. Does anybody know where I can download a PDF version of the service manual for this beast. Its a preJJG016001 serial number, so it appears that I need the the Phase 1 manual. Actually, I would like to have all the manuals for it. Owners, parts, diagrams etc. Whatever I can get. Print verions are too expensive for me. I would love to get these for free, but Im willing to pay a reasonable amount if need be. I really need the manuals, because this thing is going to need a LOT of work. Also, if anybody has any suggestions on where is the best place to get some of the less common stuff listed below, I would appreciate it. Extender cylinder hose. Light bulbs. Seat. Wiring and fuses. Neutral safety switch possibly. floor mat. Shuttle shifter repair parts. Door hinge pin top. Door seals both sides. Serpentine belt. Brakes. Parking brake. All oils and filters. Runners for bottom of loader bucket. This is just the preliminary list. For some items you are stuck with going to the dealer. Messicks equipment has all the filters you will need but some can be had at NAPA also. You forgot to mention the window latches for the back slider. Grab your wallet when you go for them at the dealer. I have a 1988K 4X4 ehoe and it is a rugged machine. As far as a seat I rebuilt mine and recovered it with some outdoor rated vinyl material from Joann fabric. Was expensive but worth it. Clean all the crap out of the floor pan screws and take out the pans and pressure wash the housing down from above before you get working on things. You will be glad you did. I think I will buy the PDF version of the manuals from eBay.

<http://eco-region31.ru/bose-lifestyle-5-repair-manual>

Yea, I figured I should be able to get at least some of the filters at NAPA. I need the short hose that goes from the main valve housing to the hard line for the EHoe cylinder. I think I might be able to get that at NAPA as well. Strangely enough, the rear slider window latches are fine. Go figure. I was thinking about rebuilding my seat, but its too far gone. Even the wood platform is half rotted away, and the whole damn thing smells like squirrel urine. Im writing that baby off. It looks like Tractor supply might have a top section that I might be able to mount to the frame. Well see. I will probably have to take the floor pans out to get to the 4x4 shifter mechanism and difflock anyway, so Ill take your suggestion Bill. Wengers is pretty far away for me, but Ill check out their web site. Looks like Ill be working on this project for most of the summer. Oh well. Thanks again. Lights I might just replace completely with led lights, got ours from a tractor trailer supply house. Hoses you should be able to get made. Floor mat, yours would be the first in the real world Ive seen with one. Dont skimp on redoing the wiring if you want it to last. Somebody will chime in with a parts supplier, weve not had anything break besides a hydraulic fitting for the steering. That I believe was the only part that has come directly from Case. TomThe first thing I did was go to town cleaning the machine, change all the fluids and filters, replace bulbs, fuses, apply dielectric grease to as many connectors as I could, this fixed a few issues and revealed a few more. For the seat I found an outfit on ebay that sells reproduction seat cushions, it was an easy bolt in deal, made a big difference in comfort. I removed the floor mat, it had trapped moisture and a ton of dirt under it and had rusted the floor significantly. I removed the floor panels as well as the tool and battery boxes and had them sprayed with truck bed liner.

<http://www.gasparedicaro.com/images/cannon-range-oven-classique-2000-manual.pdf>

For filters, hoses, belts, fuses and the like a good auto parts store should have or be able to get most of what you need. Ive also done a lot of business with my local Case dealership, rarely the cheapest option but theyve been very helpful and have always been able to get anything Ive needed in a day or two. There are a few online parts sources that Ive had good experiences with finding parts for the 580K, Coleman equipment and Broken tractor So far so good on the little things, and a few big ones too. In the past two days I got a new serpentine belt, upper radiator hose, air filters and the extender hose installed. I took the floor mat and pad out, and they were so brittle that they fell apart upon removal. Not suprising. Still working on the lights. Now comes the bad news. While checking for leaks from the new hose, I found a major problem that I had not seen before. There is a small crack in the lower section of the main boom cylinder. Yes, the really expensive one. Its near the bottom, just up from the lower hydraulic fitting. Appears to be right on a weld that runs partially around the circumference. I suspect that the weld should not be there, and was probably a repair. I didnt see it because its painted over, and looks like a factory weld. The leak is very slow, but will undoubtedly get bigger over time. So the question is, Is this repairable. Can it be welded If so, do I have to take the whole thing apart and drain it, to safely weld it. I really dont want to have to spend the twelve hundred bucks or so to replace this thing, but I guess thats obvious. Any ideas Can it be welded If so, do I have to take the whole thing apart and drain it, to safely weld it. I really dont want to have to spend the twelve hundred bucks or so to replace this thing, but I guess thats obvious. Any ideas Click to expand. This is best done with it off the machine. Hopefully it wont get any worse until then.

CASE 580K PHASE 1 LOADER BACKHOE SERVICE MANUAL

I'll plan on tearing the whole thing apart, and taking it to a more experienced welder, with better equipment than I have. I have an 87 as well with original operators manual and a hard copy of the part diagram. I have a PDF version of a 9294 580K that is helpful but I'd like to get the correct version at some point in time. They have both been very useful though. I should point out that the operators manual actually has some information that the service manual does not. It's especially helpful if you're new to Case brand backhoes. I live in Selinsgrove, and work in Williamsport. I am looking at an 87 580K tomorrow and have been searching for manuals too. Which eBay vendor did you buy from? I live in Selinsgrove, and work in Williamsport. I am looking at an 87 580K tomorrow and have been searching for manuals too. Which eBay vendor did you buy from. Click to expand. Been to Williamsport many times. Some advice about the 580K. Check EVERYWHERE for leaks. I found some in places I didn't even know were possible. I have leaks in the front axle, hydraulic reservoir and main boom cylinder cracked weld. Cab rust is pretty common as well. When bargaining the price, overestimate both the time and cost of repairs by a factor of four. BUY IT!!! You won't regret it. The rust issue has cost me more time than any other factor. Cutting, hammering, chiseling, grinding, drilling and retapping for hours on end, was NOT fun. Be thorough when inspecting. There are a multitude of issues that you really have to look for, because they can be well hidden. Good luck. Small world. But I ended up buying the 580K that I went to look at. Very tight and well running machine with only 1433 hours on it. There were a few line leaks that were fixed that day before I got there. The one stabilizer does leak down a little bit sitting over night. No biggie for me to fix. Getting 2 new tires before I get it. And best of all, no rust at all. Now to get it transported to my place and start digging!
